A highly specialized ability thus distorts the picture that the final score gives. If we used age-level tests alone and made inferences only from those, our social treatment in this case would in all likelihood be a failure. (b) Cases in which the L. Q. is unreliable because too low. An instance of this kind is the case of a boy of fourteen and one-half whose I. Q. --80--would classify him as being subnormal or dull normal. But on many tests--arithmetic, motor control, visualizing powers, apperceptions, and particularly in working with concrete material--he made good records. On some of these his performance was far above the normal for his age or school grade. His particular disability was concerned with language; although he was born in this country and attended the public schools, he had much difficulty with both the use and...
