Excerpt from Montenegro: The Crime of the Peace Conference There is no purpose here to say a word against the Serbian people. On the contrary, to show how their rulers and diplomats misrepresent them is to set them right before the world. The spirit of the true Serbia is expressed in Professor Pupin's delightful recollections of his boyhood, in Scribner's Magazine. Nicolas the poet-prince of Montenegro was the native embodiment of the best old Balkan traditions, dishonored by the Belgrade bureaucrats.
