ENGLAND S POLICY IN CHINA (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from England s Policy in China Our position towards China is not entirely new, but the gravity of it is now being realised for the first the. England has more reason than Napoleon had in Egypt to remind her soldiers and her politicians in the Flowery Land that they are in the presence of Forty Centuries. His Forty Centuries looked down from Memnon s statue, from pyramid and obelisk and sculptured tomb, over great sandy wastes, and on a scanty degraded population long accustomed to the persuasion of the stick; but on the Expeditionary Force to China the Forty Centuries which look down are no ghost of a dead Past, but a vast nation, a polity, a mode of thought and modes of life, which have beheld the birth of authentic history, and, having survived the vicissitudes of four thousand years, are still hale and strong though they have lost the fire of youth. we have not to do with a country thinly peopled by savage tribes, which must yield their hunting grounds to the expanding populations of Bumpo. It is not a mouldering corpse or a sick man before which we now stand, but a great and grave nation suffering chiefly from the wounds which we have ourselves wantonly inflicted. It is a nation with arts and sciences which content its wants; with a literature unequalled in the depth of its practical wisdom with a state of society more homogeneous and thoroughly organised than any other existing on the globe; with education generally diffused; with material benefits richly shared by the labouring classes with a population which numbers more than a third of the human race, and which neither...
